

Creation or Evolution

Ending the debate

Plenty has been written on this subject, and years of debate have followed. Must theology and science be at odds? Here is my conclusion; neither theological nor scientific. It is short, sensible and invites your serious consideration.

Nature (not to say creation) ,as we observe it, gives testimony to its beauty, diversity and ingenuity. It invites our admiration; and anyone who doesn't, just hasn't looked carefully. Our native intelligence can see in the things around us the hand of a creator, perhaps unknown, but certainly responsible for these wonders. Since a blind person cannot distinguish colours or detect movement without the help of at least one other sense, we have to conclude that only the blind or one whose intelligence has been adversely affected can believe that everything comes from nothing and developed spontaneously by natural processes.

Creative Genius

The remarkable and complex male/female compatibility that requires two fully-formed creatures to be completely harmonious, but of different sexes, is very strong evidence of a creative force. Think for a moment of the amazing metamorphosis from caterpillar to butterfly with its varied color patterns. The beautiful bird-calls and their springtime mating dances, among innumerable other observable details, would certainly silence anyone who thought they could be explained away by time and random circumstances, rather than by a phenomenal creative genius.

People who deny the hand of the Creator and often the fact of a universal flood (with its abundant geological support and convincing fossil record of a cataclysmic inundation) are enshrouded in an intellectual fog. They talk of millions or billions of years of evolution. But Jesus Christ, the Son of God, clearly confirmed in His documented talks these two undeniable facts (the Creation and the Deluge). He's the one who puts to rest the delusion of counter-arguments.

Faith is the Game Changer

To you who reads these lines; you who are indeed classified as mortal, it's high time to discover faith, or recover the faith you once enjoyed. God is true and cannot lie. Jesus is alive and has never lied, and indeed, cannot lie. Listen to what he says: "Heaven and earth shall pass away, but my words shall not pass away" (Matthew 24:35). We are rapidly approaching the final scenes predicted in the Holy Scriptures, the Bible. Its pages describe the unbelief, the denial of the truth, and the mocking of God that we see all around us; it also warns clearly of the judgment that is soon to follow.

At this very moment, you are offered the opportunity to take hold of the "good news" message, perhaps for the last time. It's quite simple; "For God so loved the world that He gave His only begotten Son, that whosoever believes in Him, should not perish but have everlasting life" (John 3:16). This great offer of pardon and reconciliation could end at any time – it is secure and free, but it makes you responsible right now for your final destiny – either eternal life or perdition. Choose life, trust God and His Son, the Lord Jesus Christ, and receive the free gift that can be yours because of what He accomplished when He died for you on the cross of Calvary.
